“Angel Missions Haiti” Does Life Saving Work

Under the sure guidance of Vanessa Carpenter and her dedicated team, many Haitian children obtain visas that allow them to receive life saving medical care abroad.

We met Vanessa when we were unable to obtain appropriate and timely visas for the children Adriano and Marck whom we met on our May 2010 trip. After three weeks of going nowhere, Vanessa came to the rescue and got both children out of Haiti and to their waiting physicians and host families in very short order.

Angel Missions does more than obtain visas, they provide guardianship and guidance for each child during their stay in the US.

Vanessa works tirelessly, spending half of each month in Haiti and on her last trip was able to accomplish this nearly impossible task for seven children.

The paperwork and hurdles associated with this work are incredibly difficult, but Angel Missions sticks with it until the job is done. Without them, Adriano, Marck and dozens of other children would still be waiting.

Host Parents Play Critical Role in Bringing Change to Haitian Children Receiving Medical Treatment in the US

We can't say enough wonderful things about the host families taking care of the two Haitian children for whom we were asked to arrange health care.

Jeff and Diane Rose, who live in Philadelphia and take care of Adriano, have been unbelievable in their solicitous care of him. Any child would thrive with their love.

When they learned he needed transportation out of Haiti they dropped everything and rushed to pick him up (at their own expense, I might add.). Adriano lights up when he sees either of them and we know they have made the heart of our Father in Heaven very happy. We all owe them a debt of gratitude for opening their hearts and home to Adriano. Adriano spent nearly a month in the hospital before surgery and the Rose's were there with him every step of the way.

The Warrenders, Jeff and Melissa, are hosting Marck. There are many requirements in monitoring a baby with corneal transplants. In addition, Marck is receiving his medical treatment in St. Louis while his host family lives in New York.

They have willingly traveled from their home in Albany, New York to St. Louis for these surgeries so Marck can have the best of care.

They too have been incredible and loving while providing for Marck from their own resources. Their two young daughters have fully embraced the experience.

We are so grateful we have come to know people who step fearlessly up to the task and perform it with such grace.

Child Hope International Brings Hope to Haiti Orphans

Bill and Susette Manaserro and their team have been providing care to scores of Haiti's orphans. Their facility, located in Delmas, has both a boys' and girls' home and is filled with workers who offer love and compassion to the children.

We stayed at the guest house there on our recent trip to Haiti and were happy to see how well the children are doing. The staff of volunteers include teachers and nurses who man the school and clinic. A community feeding program provides a chance for the neighborhood children to learn about Jesus.

HIS Home For Children help-Marck and Adriano Qualify for Visas

Hal and Chris Nungester have been serving Haiti's children since the 90's. Their work among orphans has provided relief and spiritual guidance to many abandoned and deserted children as well as orphans. Many of the children who are at HHC are available for adoption. We are so grateful for the work God's people are doing among the children of the world.
